Pentagon Cuts Use of Lie Detectors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, often accused of being less than truthful about some things, is cutting back on the use of lie detector tests.

And Congress, sometimes the accuser, is happy about it.

When a House Committee on Government Operations said federal agencies were too liberal in the use of polygraph — lie detector — examinations, the Defense Department was the first to change its ways.

The Pentagon went out with an order regulating how polygraph tests were to be conducted and stating how its examiners, now numbering over 400, were to be selected, trained

Friday Meat Question Up to Bishops

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The question of meat on Friday for the nation's Roman Catholics comes up today at an extraordinary conference of bishops.

The 219 American prelates turn their attention to this issue after:

— Accusing the Johnson administration of coercing the poor to practice birth control.

— Using a computing machine to conduct the first election in their history. Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit was chosen president of the episcopal conference, granted new powers by Pope Paul VI and the Ecumenical Council at Rome.

One of the issues up to the bishops, archbishops and cardinals is whether American Catholics must continue to abstain from meat on Friday, or whether some other form of penance, such as prayer and good works, may be substituted.

An influential body of opinion in the American hierarchy has argued for virtual abolition of the no meat-on-Friday rule, as obsolete. It already has been abandoned in some countries, including Canada, Italy and France.

On the birth control issue, Bishop Raymond J. Gallagher of Lafayette, Ind., a spokesman for the prelates, told a news conference: "We have the spectre of the government offering below minimum relief to the poor with one hand while the other is filled with contraceptives."

He called this a threat to liberty and the dignity of the individual.

He said the Health, Education and Welfare Department is holding briefings for relief workers in major cities, telling them only one side of the birth control issue.

Bishops present said a letter had been written months ago to Sargent Shriver, director of the antipoverty program, challenging the constitutionality of certain birth control activities.

Bishop Gallagher said, "We did not receive the courtesy of a response."

Of the 261 cardinals, archbishops and bishops eligible to attend the five-day conference, 219 are here. Conference officials said the others are absent for such reasons as illness or retirement.

A computing machine was necessary because of the complexity of Monday's election. All the cardinals and bishops were on the nominating committee, and there were 141 nominations.

On the third ballot, Archbishop Dearden won the presidency, by a majority which was not disclosed. Archbishop John J. Krol of Philadelphia was elected vice president.

and supervised.

"The directive represented the first step taken by any agency to curtail the widespread use of the so-called lie detector test," the committee reported just before adjournment of the 89th Congress.

DORA ANN KING

Miss Dora Ann King will be presented in a piano recital at the First Baptist Church Sunday, November 20 at 3 p.m. under the auspices of the Friday Music Club.

A senior music major at Ouachita Baptist University, Miss King is the pupil of Miss Virginia Queen. She will play the same program on Sunday afternoon that she will perform at her Senior Recital Monday, November 21 at 8 p.m. in Mitchell Hall at O.B.U.

The program will include "Toccata and Fugue in e minor," J.S. Bach; "Intermezzo, Op. 4" Robert Schumann; "Divisions," John Alden Carpenter; "Prelude in C, Op. 12, No. 7," Serge Prokofiev; "Concert in E flat Major," W.A. Mozart. In the last selection the orchestral parts will be played by Miss Queen.

The public is invited.

Not Trying to Close Door on Romney

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barry Goldwater says it's "not true" that he and Richard M. Nixon are collaborating to try to block any bid by Michigan Gov. George Romney for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination.

But Goldwater, though not closing the door on Romney, said the governor still has "a lot of homework to do" with party leaders to atone for not endorsing Goldwater in the 1964 presidential race.

Romney, meanwhile, said he still hasn't decided whether to run for president.

Goldwater was asked Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" if he were collaborating with Nixon to stop Romney, as the questioner said, "it has been written and reported."

"No that is not true," said Goldwater. "I happen to be a Nixon backer, but I haven't seen Dick Nixon in person in over three months."

Nixon is regarded as another likely candidate for the nomination.

Romney, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," continued his move to gloss over old differences with Goldwater.

Though saying "I just haven't made a decision" on whether to run for president, Romney was his most candid so far in acknowledging he is thinking about running.

He and Goldwater did join in attacking Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in the wake of McNamara's announcement that the Soviet Union is deploying an antimissile system.

"Just another incident of where McNamara is not leveling with the American people," said Goldwater.

"Perhaps we have a gap in this (antimissile) respect now as a result of mismanagement of these Democratic administrations," said Romney.

On GOP politics, Romney said, "I am not interested in going back and taking a look at the past."

But Goldwater was interested, saying: "Romney is a Republican. He calls himself one. But it has only been in this campaign that he has publicly done this. Now this may not mean anything to the rank and file American, but it means a lot to those people who work in Republican politics. He has a lot of home work to do and a lot of spade and groundwork to do in the area of the Republican party itself."

If traffic judges were not so lenient on drunken drivers it might have a sobering effect.

Testimony in Sheppard Trial Ends

By THOMAS R. CASTOR
CLEVELAND, Ohio, (AP) — The jury has heard all the evidence in the Samuel H. Sheppard murder trial and will make its decision without hearing the former osteopath tell his version of the 1954 bludgeoning slaying of his first wife, Marilyn.

Testimony concluded Monday and today was reserved for final arguments and Judge Francis J. Talty's charge.

Talty told the panel of seven men and five women they could expect to get the case either late today or Wednesday morning.

Presentation of evidence ended after the state put two rebuttal witnesses on the stand — a fingerprint technician who had testified earlier and an expert on blood groupings.

The defense ended its case without asking Sheppard, 42, to recount the murder night as he did 12 years ago when he was on the stand three days.

Talty is bound by law to tell the jurors they cannot attach any significance to the fact that Sheppard did not testify at his trial, which is on charges of second-degree murder.

Sheppard originally was charged with first-degree murder. He was convicted of second-degree murder, and served nine years in prison. The U.S. Supreme Court set aside that conviction last June, and ordered Sheppard retried or freed.

The first trial lasted nine weeks and 70 witnesses were heard. In the retrial, which entered its fourth week Monday, 31 witnesses testified.

As a rebuttal witness for the state Dr. Roger W. Marsters, a biochemist and a blood expert from Cleveland Heights, questioned the validity of tests made on two blood spots in the room where 31-year-old Marilyn Sheppard was beaten to death.

Dr. Paul Leland Kirk, a University of California criminologist, had testified for the defense that tests early in 1955 showed that one of the spots was not the blood of Sheppard or his slain wife.

Marsters said the identification of dried blood stains "is very difficult and very tedious." He added it was "frought with all kinds of problems and modifications."

The state's other rebuttal witness was Police Lt. Jerome Poelking, who said he had dusted the two stains with fingerprint powder, prior to Kirk's tests.

Vote Splitters Leave Doubt as to Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — So many voters split tickets in the Nov. 8 election that it's impossible to categorize them strictly as Democratic or Republican.

In 10 of the 22 states which elected both a governor and a senator last week, a Republican won one race and a Democrat the other.

The 10 were Alaska, unless a recount retains the Democratic governor; Arkansas, Maine, Minnesota, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

In Nevada, a Republican was elected governor while the state's lone House member, a Democrat, was returned to office by a 2-1 ratio.

In Rhode Island, for example, Gov. John H. Chafee, a Republican, and Sen. Claiborne Pell, a Democrat, each won re-election by slightly under and slightly more than 2-to-1 respectively. This means at least 105,000, or 32 per cent, of the 323,000 persons who voted split their ticket.

The minimum crossover was less than 10 per cent in Minnesota, but that was more than enough to split the results.

Races for the House of Representatives were the only type of contest held throughout the country.

Even nationwide party totals of these 435 contests are distorted by the fact that 51 Democrats and 4 Republicans had no major party opponent.

THANK YOU.....

My Family and I wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the splendid vote I received in the Nov. 8th General Election.

Richest Blessings to Each of You.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT THE HARD SELL?

Dear Helen: A while back a vacuum cleaner salesman came to our door. My mother said she didn't want one, but he came in anyway.

Then he proceeded to sell my father on the cleaner, even though my mother told him (my father) she would break all his fingers if he signed the contract.

He signed anyway, after the salesman told her to leave him alone. She threatened to slap the salesman, but that made my father all the more determined to buy. She explained that we could not afford a $400 vacuum cleaner.

My mother has written to the company but has not heard from them. She tried to read the contract but it doesn't make much sense. Is there anything she can do?—HELP

Dear Help: If your father signed a contract, there is little he can do but pay for the machine; or let it go back—which will put a black mark on his credit rating.

However, if your mother can prove undue sales pressure, she should register a complaint with the Better Business Bureau, or the Consumer Council in her state. A salesman who twists the arm of the gullible sex (males, match) should have his fingers rapped.—H.

Dear Helen: I got a problem. I am visiting my brother-in-law, the one and only flink, and my sister who is a nice lady. I get static on how much I eat. I do not get fat; this is what I have for an average day:

Breakfast: two eggs, bowl of cereal, two slices of toast, a bagel and sausage.

Lunch: Three sandwiches and three dips of potatoes (my dips—well, they are not like your dips.)

Dinner: Four hamburgers and three dips of potatoes (my dips—well, they are not like your dips.) My b-i-n-l says it's unbelievable. I am still alive, so I guess I'm not that strange. Should I go on a starvation diet just for him?—HUNGRY GROWING BOY

Dear HGB:

It would be pretty cruel depriving you of the goodies that keep your stomach away from your backbone, but it's pretty expensive providing them. Maybe your visit has lasted long enough and you should go home and eat.—H.

Dear Helen: My friends have told me that if a girl wears a bracelet on her right ankle she is looking for a boy friend, but if she wears it on her left ankle, she already has a boy friend.

Others say it's vice versa. Please tell me, which is which?—A.N.

Dear A: Frankly I don't know—but I bet I'll find out as soon as this column is published.

Any information from anklet etiquette experts will be greatly appreciated.—H.

Dear Helen: My sister will be married soon and wants a big wedding, with white dress, etc. I always heard you shouldn't wear white unless you deserve to wear it. But if she wears a color, that's shouting it out, isn't it? So what to do?—H.D.R.

Dear H: You heard wrong. White may be chosen even for a second-marriage bride. Why don't you stop worrying about what doesn't concern you?—H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Astronaut Edwin E. Aldrin Jr.'s space walk Sunday was happily timed — at least for the television networks and the professional football fans.

NBC, with puppets demonstrating the extra vehicular activity and CBS, using a human space engineer outside a mock-up of a space craft, showed the astronaut's activities as they were reported. It was wrapped up with time to spare before the games started. One hesitates to predict whether the spacemen or the gridiron warriors would have prevailed had there been a time conflict.

Although the coverage of the space exploit was complete, it was difficult, if not impossible, to understand the voices of the astronauts. But, as David Brinkley noted, the miracle was that we were able to hear at all the voice of a man as he climbed around outside a space ship beyond the earth's atmosphere.

After all the recent Sundays in which television has been awash with politics, it was almost a relief to get back into programming featuring animals, undersea exploration and old movies.

True, there was Barry Goldwater on ABC talking about the election and Gov. George Romney was denying he was a presidential candidate on NBC's "Meet the Press." But on the late afternoon "Frank McGee Report" — McGee was missing, on his space assignment — the entire program was devoted to a report on California, its people, its economics, its personality — but not, for a change, its politics.

"Back to Budapest," NBC's news special in early evening, was an interesting report on life in the city 10 years after the revolt by Hungarian freedom fighters was crushed by the Communists with Soviet help.

Frank Bourgholtzer and his cameraman — the photography was excellent — visited a factory, a school and the homes of a working couple and the manager of a nationalized textile factory.

He found that food was plentiful, rents in old buildings cheap and life was pleasant for the most part. People attend church freely, artists paint and writers write and the Communists even permit a satirical revue to mock the government. He did find that workers and plant managers alike earn small salaries and live in crowded quarters.

Bourgholtzer, however, did not tell us how much freedom he and his cameraman were allowed, and whether he was able to choose the people into whose homes he went. Certainly none of the Hungarians, most of them stiffly aware of the camera, had anything important to say.

ARKIN UNDER ALIAS

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Off Broadway's new hits afforded Alan Arkin, comedian, a chance at directing debut under an alias.

When the play, "Eh?" opened, the staging was credited to Roger Short. When investigation revealed no one of that name was a member of the directors' guild, Arkin acknowledged he used the pseudonym after being hurriedly summoned in replacement of two other directors.

Razorbacks Remain in Sixth Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The votes have been tabulated, and the results show what everybody already knows—Notre Dame will play Michigan State Saturday for the No. 1 spot in college football.

Notre Dame, 8-0, is on top again this week and Michigan State, 9-0, is second again in The Associated Press poll released today.

The Irish drew 35 first-place votes in the weekly poll and a total of 420 points while the Spartans were first on six ballots and accumulated 392 points.

The rest of the Top Ten, with the exception of 10th place, remained the same as last week with Alabama third, Nebraska fourth, Georgia Tech fifth, Arkansas sixth, Southern California seventh, UCLA eighth and Georgia ninth.

Purdue, 16-0 winners over Minnesota last Saturday, moved into 10th, replacing Tennessee which lost to Mississippi 14-7.

Notre Dame has posted five shutouts this season while holding its opponents to a total of 28 points, and the Spartans have given up an average of just 10 points a game.

The situation is nearly the same as it was last year when the teams met at Notre Dame.

Michigan State was undefeated and needed a victory against the Irish to complete an unbeaten season and hold its No. 1 ranking in the country. The Spartans attained both goals by winning 12-3, and all the Irish got was their second loss of a season.

The Spartans again need a victory—this time at home—to complete another unbeaten season and move from second to first in the national rankings.

The Irish, however, are shooting for their first undefeated, untied season since 1949 and their first national championship since the same year. Even if they get by Michigan State, though, they have another game against Southern California the following week.

Two other members of the Top Ten—Southern Cal and UCLA—are involved in Saturday's second biggest battle while four other teams are idle—Alabama, Nebraska, Georgia Tech and Georgia.

Arkansas is at Texas Tech and Purdue hosts Indiana.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parenthesis, and total points on 10-9 etc. basis:

1. Notre Dame (35)	420
2. Michigan State (6)	392
3. Alabama (1)	327
4. Nebraska	282
5. Georgia Tech	241
6. Arkansas (1)	206
7. Southern Calif.	172
8. UCLA	136
9. Georgia	102
10. Purdue	37

Chamberlain, Barry Lead in Statistics

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry of San Francisco and Philadelphia's Wilt Chamberlain continue to dominate National Basketball statistics, being among the first 10 in four of the five major categories.

Barry is the scoring leader, with 574 points for a 38.3 average in game through Nov. 13; second in free throw percentage, with .874; tied for 10th in field goal percentage, with .490 and 10th in rebounds, with 161.

Chamberlain leads in field goal percentage, with .623; second in rebounds, with 291; seventh in scoring, with 279 points for a 23.3 average and eighth in assists, with 66.

Hog Runners Take Cross Country Meet

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Arkansas placed five runners in the top 13 Monday and romped off with the Southwest Conference cross country championship.

Charles Elder led the Razorback delegation with a second place finish in 14:35 over the three-mile course.

John Heffner of Texas A&M put on a final burst of speed at the finish to clip Elder by .03 of a second.

Arkansas scored 37 points while the runner-up Aggies had 57. Texas was third with 63, followed by Rice 97, Southern Methodist 122 and Baylor 134. Texas Tech and Texas Christian did not compete for the team title.

James Morrison of Arkansas was fifth with 14:16, William Taylor seventh in 14:54 and John Auffet tenth in 15:03.

Hogs Still No. 1 Team Defensively

DALLAS (AP) — Some outstanding performances have moved Southwest Conference individual statistical football leaders high among the all-time performers.

Chris Gilbert of Texas, Terry Southall of Baylor, Larry Gilbert of Texas Tech and David Dickey of Arkansas are among those likely to rank high in the record book when the season ends.

Chris Gilbert had his fifth rushing performance of more than 100 yards this season when he gained 117 against Texas Tech Christian last week. That gave the Texas sophomore a net of 943 yards on 180 carries in nine games.

He needs only 21 yards against Texas A&M in the season finale Thanksgiving Day to rank third among the all-time leaders, an honor now belonging to Texas Tech's graduated All-American Donny Anderson.

Southall has put together two consecutive 24 pass completion games, and if he can maintain the pace against Southern Methodist and Rice he can equal the record of 174 by Baylor's Don Truell in 1963.

The Baylor senior should emerge as the conference passing leader. He holds a three completion edge over Texas A—M's Edd Hargett, who has one game remaining. Hargett leads Southall in yardage, 1,453 to 1,392 but the Baylor sharpshooter has thrown for the most touchdowns, 12. Southall also leads in interceptions with 20.

Larry Gilbert is currently tied for sixth place among the all-time pass receiving leaders with 48 catches for 714 yards.

Dickey set a conference record for number of carries in a single game, 38, when he rushed for 133 yards against Southern Methodist last week. He also scored his seventh and eighth touchdowns in three games to take over the season scoring leadership with 48 points.

Texas Tech became the top offensive team in the weekly statistics announced today by the Southwest Conference. The Raiders are averaging 314 yards per game, two more than Southern Methodist, last week's leader.

Arkansas continues as the No. 1 defensive team, giving up 248 yards a game, with only 89 of it coming on the ground.

Baylor Out for Two Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elgin Baylor Los Angeles Laker All-Star forward, will remain in Los Angeles this week when his team plays in Dayton, Ohio and Detroit, says Lou Mohs, Laker general manager.

Baylor, who strained the ligaments in his right knee last month, is not expected to play until next Saturday's game against the San Francisco Warriors' Mohs said Monday.

Orange Bowl to Pick Sunday

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Five teams are being considered for the Orange Bowl football game Jan. 2 but no decision will be made until Sunday.

The Orange Bowl Committee announced it will hold a meeting Sunday morning to consider Alabama, Georgia Tech, Nebraska, Florida and Georgia.

a hard-nosed sergeant. In this life, there are 23 hours for fun and one for business. And during that one hour I don't fool around."

In his playing career (most of it with the old Syracuse Nationals), Kerr was thrown out of a game only one time. He blocked a shot attempted by K. C. Jones of the Boston Celtics, and the referee called it a foul. Johnny yanked off an arm pad that protected his elbows and flung it to the floor. The referee flung him out of the game.

He stormed into the dressing room seeing red. On top of a locker there were 12 cold cans of beer lined up neatly, awaiting the thirsty athletes after the game. Kerr, who could reach them without raising his heels, stormily swept them off the locker. They clattered to the floor.

"Now look what I've done," he said to himself contritely. So he stooped over and carefully picked up the cans and restored them in a neat line, then sat down trying to cool off.

About that time, his teammates came into the dressing room, grabbed the beers, flipped the tops and foam spurted all over the walls, the ceiling and the players—like an old Mack Sennett scene—from the stirred-up suds. A big Irish smile eased Kerr's tension.

He's able to change moods as a coach, too, and adapt himself.

I called out a play during a game the other night," he says, "and the guard went the wrong way. It worked anyhow I tried it again. He went the wrong way again, and it still worked. Now that's in our offense instead."

Actually, Kerr's basic philosophy with the Bulls was to stress defense and let them improvise the rest of the games. We've now built up our offense to where we have 15 plays. He concedes —and 100 that Guy Rodgers makes up — Rodgers is the veteran guard and playmaker.

"This sounds corny," notes Kerr, "but there's no ability you can give a guy. You give 'em knowledge. I had to learn the favorite side of guards. I was never a dominating figure. I was a small 6-9."

Rookie QB Is Ready for Baltimore

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie quarterback Karl Sweetan of the Detroit Lions will be ready to play when the Lions take aim at the league-leading Baltimore Colts at Tiger Stadium Sunday, a team physician said Monday.

Dr. Richard A. Thompson said Sweetan would play Sunday with a specially built fiberglass corset to protect his injured ribs.

"We took several X-rays Monday and they showed Sweetan had suffered severe bruises but no fractures," said Thompson.

Sweetan guided the Lions to a come-from-behind 32-31 victory over the Minnesota Vikings Sunday.

He said he had injured his ribs a week earlier in the game with the Chicago Bears and that he had reinjured them Sunday when he was tackled in the first period.

Clay Takes Williams, Terrell Next

By MURRAY ROSE

HOUSTON (AP) — After battering Cleveland Williams from a big cat into a puny mouse in a little more than two rounds, heavyweight champion Cassius Clay turned to Ernie Terrell and shouted, "You're next."

"I'm ready," said Terrell, the 6-foot-6, 27-year-old Chicagoan who is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association.

They are expected to meet on Feb. 6, at Houston, Chicago, New York, Las Vegas or Toronto.

Houston has the edge now after drawing an indoor record crowd of 35,460 to the magnificent Astrodome. The gross gate was $461,290.

The undefeated, 24-year-old Clay floored the 33-year-old Big Cat from Houston three times in the second round and once more in the third round before referee Harry Kessler of St. Louis ended the slaughter with the blood-smeared Williams wobbling on rubbery legs. The time was announced at 1:08 of the third.

"I made one big mistake," said Williams, a 5-1 underdog. "I dropped my left hand and he nailed me. I don't know why I did it."

Clay, strong and fast at 212½ pounds, shot his right hand over and decked the 210½-pound challenger for the first time in the second round. Williams was up at two and took the mandatory eight count.

A barrage of blows, unleashed by Clay with the speed of machinegun fire, felled the dazed challenger again for two. The third knockdown came on another flashing volley and Williams went flat on his back.

The bell sounded at five and saved Williams from a knockout.

Williams did not use a mouthpiece and suffered cuts inside and outside of his mouth. His mouth was bruised and bled.

Williams' record is 65-6-1. He has been stopped four times.

The ring-scarred veteran of 16-years of pro fighting had the consolation of a payday of about $250,000, Clay's share of the gate receipts and the closed circuit television, radio, films and other ancillary rights, may hit about $750,000.

IT'LL TAKE MORE THAN A PIECE OF PAPER

3 Porker Players Out for Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said Monday that three Razorbacks starters would miss Saturday's finale with Texas Tech but that Harry Jones may be able to play.

Broyles, after sending the Porkers through a brisk one-hour practice session, said linebacker Lee Johnson, tailback Bruce Maxwell and linebacker Jim Barnes would not be able to play because of injuries.

He said however, that Jones' shoulder injury was not as serious as first thought and that the All-Southwest Conference wingback may see some action. Jones sprained his shoulder in Saturday's 22-0 victory over Southern Methodist.

He said the Porkers graded very well in the SMU game and he declined to single out any individual.

Broyles also said he was greatly impressed with Tech. "They've got the best designed offense I've seen in the last five years," he said.

"My plan for the fight was to punch — and you saw it," said Clay, obviously determined to show up to critics who say he can't punch.

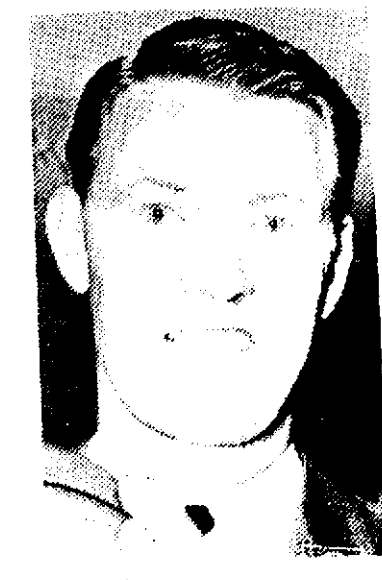

Williams, a noted puncher scored 51 knockouts, shot and his insides torn by a policeman's bullet (still in his hip) two years ago. He was given up for dead but recovered after three operations.

Since his return to the ring in February, Williams won four fights, two by knockouts, over nobodies. He didn't look impressive but said he had regained his old power. He showed nothing against the invincible boxing master from Louisville, Ky.

It was Clay's sixth title defense within a year and only Canadian champion George Chuvalo went the limit. Clay's record is 27-0 including 22 knockouts.

Williams' record is 65-6-1. He has been stopped four times.

The ring-scarred veteran of 16-years of pro fighting had the consolation of a payday of about $250,000, Clay's share of the gate receipts and the closed circuit television, radio, films and other ancillary rights, may hit about $750,000.

EAST LANSING, MICH.—(NEA)—There is a possibility, though remote, that even the Harvards and Yales will be bringing transistor radios to Cambridge, Nov. 19.

Harvard-Yale, of course, is still THE game.

That scrum in East Lansing between the best student-athletes of Notre Dame and Michigan State is just a one-year novelty, though an interesting novelty. Only a national championship is the reward for the team with the most points on the scoreboard.

The game is such a novelty that a lot of football fans and players are going to have a difficult time concentrating on all the traditional games which are played on the third Saturday in November.

On Nov. 19, Purdue quarterback Bob Griese will be working in Ross-Ade Stadium, Lafayette, Ind., against the University of Indiana.

Bob Griese will be extremely interested in the Michigan State-Notre Dame game; he is the only quarterback in the country who has played against both teams.

Notre Dame defeated Purdue, 26-14, while Michigan State won, 41-21.

This qualifies the Purdue All-American as something of one of the best around, but I feel Michigan State's George Webster is made of the same stock.

"Michigan State's Bubba Smith, because of his size, is more troublesome to a passer than the Notre Dame ends. Michigan State's linebackers blitzed me more than Notre Dame due to the fact that the Spartan defensive backfield is a little better. They didn't need the linebackers per se to help them out and they could thus assist the secondary more by blowing in."

"Notre Dame came at me with an excellent rush from the front four and dropped four linebackers off to help the defensive backs.

"Michigan State's linebackers, George Webster and Charley Thornhill, are excellent working together. The Michigan State front line did not charge as deep as Notre Dame, and Webster and Thornhill could play more tricks.

"Michigan State used a four-deep against me and Notre Dame three-deep against me. I found the four-deep tougher to pass against."

As for a prediction, Griese isn't making any—not publicly, anyway.

He'll just be like everyone else attending those "big" games Nov. 19.

His only problem is that he can't have a transistor with

MSU, Notre Dame to Meet Headon

By PHIL BROWN
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — For the game of the year, Michigan State Coach Duffy Daugherty came up with the understatement of the year: "At least this week we don't have the danger of looking by one game."

"And we don't have the problem of anyone saying, 'How much are you going to beat them by?'" The coach of the nation's No. 2 ranked team said Monday, five days before it plays the nation's No. 1 team — Notre Dame.

"I assume we'll be the underdog," he added.

He called the game a great opportunity.

"I can't remember once in the history of the polls that the No. 1 and 2 teams met in the final game of the season," he said.

Daugherty was worried about stopping Notre Dame's running because, he noted, they can always pass. And he was worried about the Irish passing because, he added, they disguise their pass plays by faking runs.

Michigan State should be in good health for the battle for the national championship, Daugherty said.

Fullback Bob Apisa, who missed two games with a knee sprain, is expected to be ready to play, even if he doesn't start. Duffy isn't too worried about the squad's mental condition either.

"I don't think there are any limits to desire and exuberance," he said. "I don't think you run out of this."

Notre Dame's star receiver, 6-foot-4, 205-pound Jim Seymour, is an outstanding player, Daugherty said.

"He has height and such quick moves, the same sure hands as (MSU end Al) Brenner and outstanding speed," he said.

Daugherty said there wouldn't be any special defensive plan for Seymour.

"You can't change your pass defense going into the 10th game," he said. "We'll just have to do everything better."

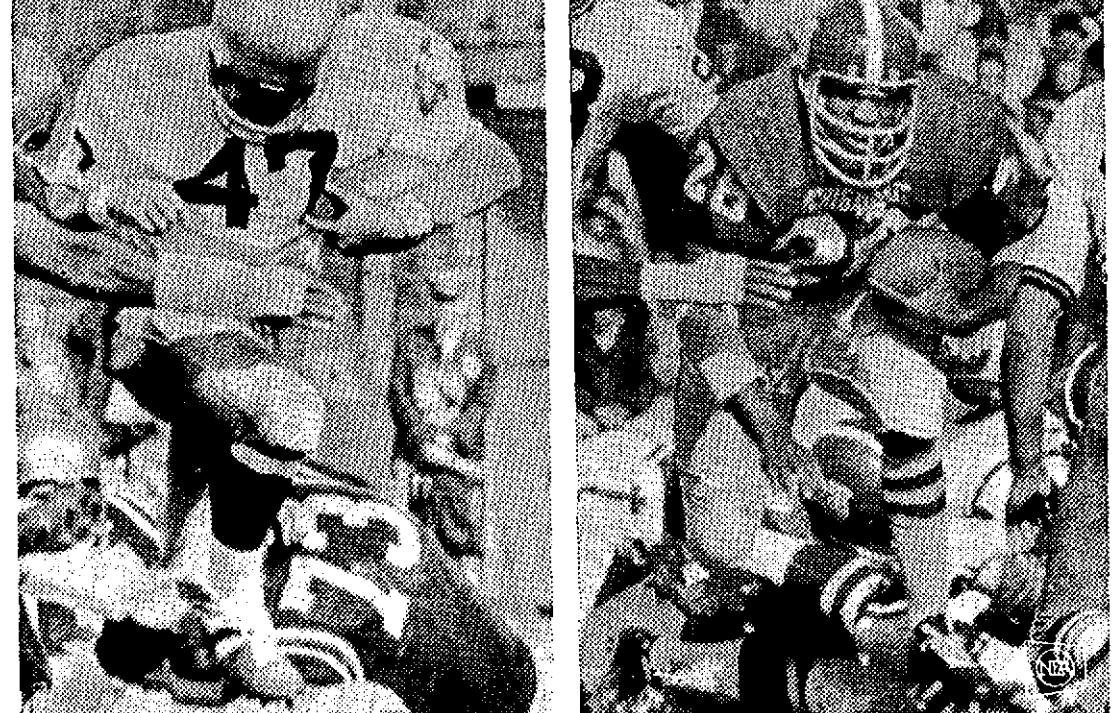

Daugherty gave the scouting report on Notre Dame to his first stringers in practice Monday, and the players did some running, but no heavy work.

Assistant coaches Ed Rutherford and Al Dorow scouted the Irish for MSU.

"Both were very impressed," Daugherty said. "They said this is a team that has everything—size, speed, good coaching and a happy blend of running and passing."

Last year, when MSU was ranked No. 1 and Notre Dame No. 4, the Spartans scored a 12-3 victory and held the Irish to minus 12 yards rushing and just 25 yards passing.

But Notre Dame is better this year, said Daugherty, because "now they've got passing plus the same running."

TWO WHO WILL tangle in college football's game of the year Nov. 19 in East Lansing, Mich., are Notre Dame's Nick Eddy, left, and Michigan State's Clint Jones. The big battle is expected to prove which team is really No. 1.

an expert on the differences— from a quarterback's viewpoint—between Michigan State and Notre Dame.

His exclusive analysis for Newspaper Enterprise Association follows:

Michigan State and Notre Dame are comparable in respect to individual defensive strength. Both have outstanding ends (Bubba Smith for Michigan State and Tom Rhoads for Notre Dame) and outstanding linebacking personnel.

"I think Notre Dame's front four—Rho and S. Hardy, Du-ranka and Page—is as good as I've faced this season. And the linebacking is solidly balanced. Notre Dame can put excellent heat on a passer. They contain well and force you to run to the inside."

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Johnny Kerr is a beautiful man. He goes through life at an altitude of six feet nine inches and leaves people feeling he was shorted.

That's because he was born into a world with George Mikan, Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell—all of whom loomed even higher, physically and esthetically.

So Johnny Kerr, who played basketball professional for 12 seasons, decided a long time ago there was too much of him to harbor frustrations. With an impish grin and a saucy tongue, he quipped his way through the dozen years.

And now that he's a coach, with the new Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association, Johnny's psychologically prepared for the shortest of professions.

"You hate to see redheads leave the game," he says, shaking an auburn forelock. "We lost one of the finest coaches in Red Auerbach (the retired Boston Celtic leader). Just having a redhead (Kerr, of course) back on the bench will be good for the league."

"Before the season started, I wrote a letter to Bill Russell (Auerbach's successor) and told him I'd retire if he would retire and stick to the bench. I haven't got a reply from Bill yet."

Kerr retired, anyhow. "I tried playing one of our training camp scrimmages," he continued, "but it seems like the floor is 20 feet longer and the basket is 15 inches higher."

Leaving the playing to the kids, Kerr and Al Bianchi, his long-time associate and now assistant coach, produced one of the marvels of the young basketball season when the Bulls went out and won four of their first five games.

This surprised everyone but Kerr. "We feel," he says, "we're going to win every game." Oh, yes, he also plays them one at a time.

The real marvel, though, was that Kerr, an easy-going guy by nature, produced a hustling, winning derisive type of team, that wins when it does win by outsmarting the other guy. Discipline has been no problem.

The Puzzle

By SYLVAN FOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Three years after President Kennedy's assassination, the nation's concern over that ghastly event has entered a new phase.

The question no longer is whether the Warren Commission adequately performed its task of determining precisely what took place on Nov. 22, 1963. A wealth of material books, articles and scholarly studies—has demonstrated convincingly that it did not.

The question now is whether the commission's work was faulty enough to warrant a new examination of the circumstances surrounding the assassination.

The persuasive answer to that question, given by a number of responsible public figures, including, most recently, Rep. Theodore S. Kaufman, R-N.Y., is yes.

Kaufman has proposed creation of a joint congressional committee that would determine "whether there is the necessity to re-investigate thoroughly all the facts and circumstances surrounding the events that ended the life of President Kennedy."

If the joint committee decided, after a study of both the Warren Report and the work of its critics, that further examination was required, it would then conduct a full-scale investigation of its own.

Similar proposals for reopening the Kennedy affair have been made in recent months by Richard Goodwin, former Kennedy aide; William F. Buckley, the conservative commentator, and several others.

An unofficial inquiry has been launched by two teams of researchers at the University of California (Los Angeles) Law School under the direction of Wesley J. Liebeler, an acting professor at the law school. Liebeler served as assistant counsel on the staff of the Warren Commission.

But, as Kaufman himself concedes, the likelihood of any immediate official or congressional action in this direction is slim indeed.

"Gerry Ford (Rep. Gerald Ford, Republican minority leader) told me he didn't think a new investigation was needed," Kaufman explains. "He was one of the seven members of the Warren Commission."

Despite Ford's confident attitude, neither the passage of time nor the reassuring words of the Warren Commission have stilled the gnawing doubts or answered the unanswered questions about that really happened in Dallas.

On the contrary, a small flood of books and articles have raised again and again the questions millions of Americans have vainly asked each other:

• Did Lee Harvey Oswald shoot alone when he shot the president, as the Warren Commission claims, or was he part of some larger plot?

• Could the assassination have taken place as the Warren Commission says it did, was the commission's judgment and investigative objectivity clouded by a desire for answers that would allay the nation's fears?

Criticism of the Warren Report falls into two major categories: The first, exemplified by Edward Jay Epstein's "Inquest," concentrates on the Warren Commission's hasty and often slipshod methods; the second, exemplified by other books, including those by French journalist Leo Sauvage, former congressional investigator Harold Weisberg, philosophy professor Richard H. Popkin, attorney Mark Lane and this writer, attack not only the commission's methods but the reasonableness of its conclusions.

At the heart of most of the criticism lie a few key points accepted by the Warren Commission and challenged by its critics:

• The commission contends that President Kennedy and Gov. John Connally of Texas were struck by the same bullet. Connally insists he was hit by a separate bullet. The critics demonstrate that much of the evidence supports Connally and that if the governor is correct, Oswald could not have been the sole assassin because it would have been physically impossible for him to fire all the shots in the time required.

• Well over half the witnesses questioned about the source of the shots that killed Kennedy said at least one came from an area to the front of the President's motorcade, rather than above and behind it. If their recollections are correct, there must have been at least two persons firing at the President.

• The commission asserts that the President was struck once in the head and once in the back. The bullet that hit the President in the back, it says, exited through his throat. The critics, supported by certain important FBI documents and other evidence, argue that the throat wound was caused by a bullet striking the President from the front—which again would mean more than one assassin.

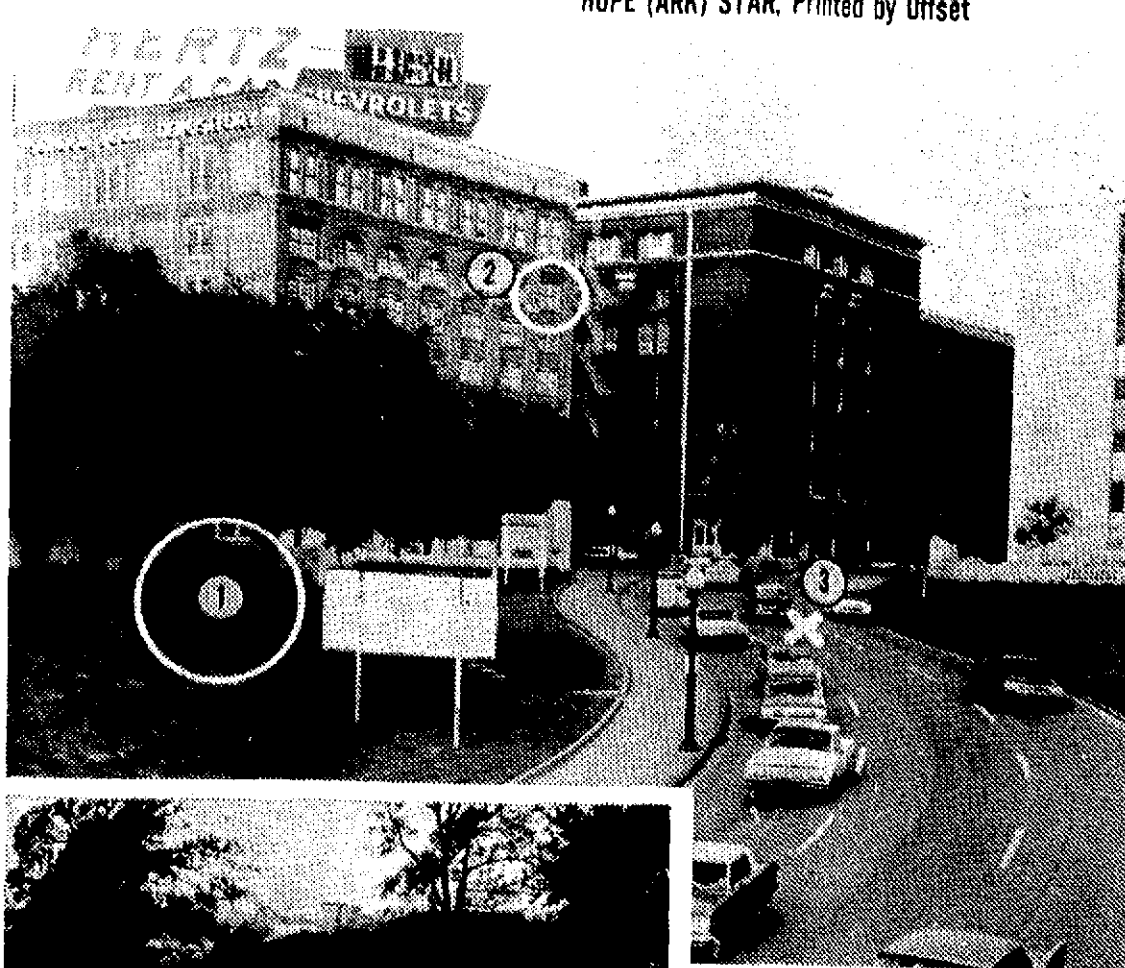

There are a host of other important areas of disagreement. The essential point, however, is that the commission failed, in the view of the critics, to prove its basic contention that Oswald was the lone assassin.

One writer, Richard Popkin, a professor at the University of California, accepted the commission's challenge to provide an alternative theory of the assassination. Using only the evidence contained in the Warren Report itself, Popkin spins a fascinating and plausible web which shows that there might have been two or even three Oswalds—the real one and one or two others posing as Oswald to confuse the trail and provide alibis.

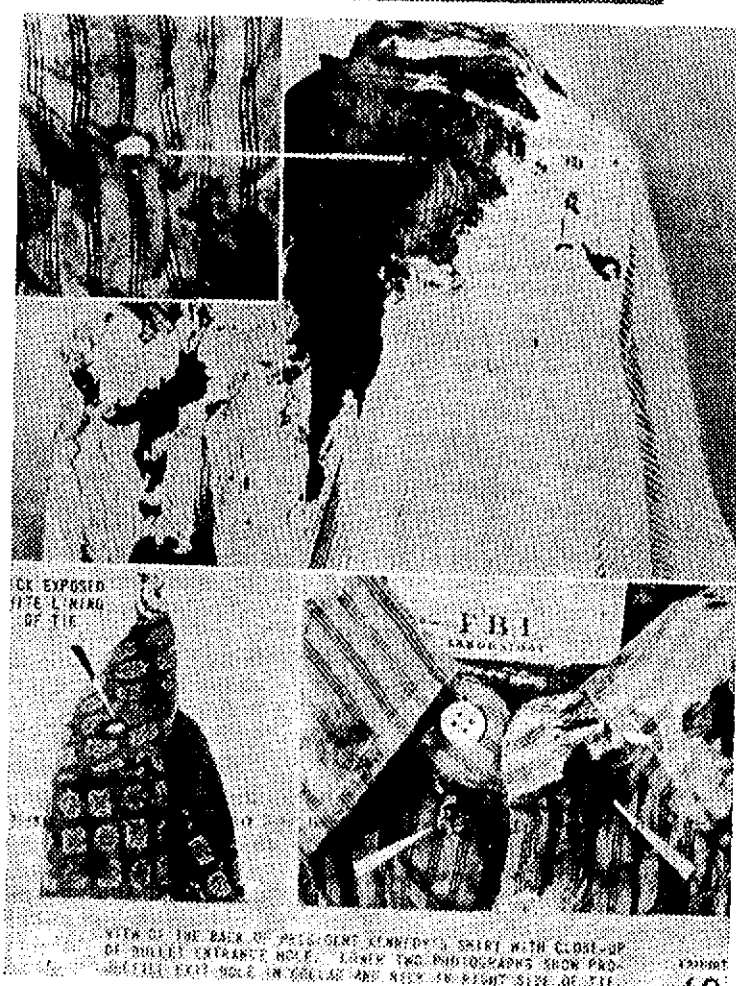

The significance of Popkin's work does not necessarily depend on its veracity. It may or may not approach the truth about an assassination plot. What is far more important is that a theory could be developed from the evidence contained in the report without assuming, as the commission did, that the assassination was the work of a single deranged man. What Popkin found, the commission should have seen and investigated. It did not.

Popkin's work is merely one instance of the abundant material that the Warren Commission either ignored or overlooked.

Only by opening the entire matter to re-examination can

MANY WITNESSES claim they heard shots coming from a "grassy knoll" (1) in front of the motorcade. Oswald allegedly fired fatal shots from window of Texas Book Depository (2). President's limousine was at (3) when first shot was fired. If "grassy knoll" theory holds, there must have been more than one assassin.

THESE PHOTOS of President's clothing were not included in Warren report. Bullet hole in back of shirt is 5 3/4 inches below collar top. Jacket bullet hole (not shown) is 5 3/4 inches below collar top. Position of wound in body was, however, considerably higher as detailed in Warren Commission medical drawing.

these loose ends be drawn together into a tighter fabric than we now have. "At some point," said British journalist Henry Fairlie, a disinterested observer who can neither be considered a critic nor a supporter of the Warren Report, "it is clear there will have to be another independent inquiry."

"The report of the Warren Commission," he added, "is now under severe and, in some cases, persuasive attack. It is hard to disagree with the general judgment of its critics that it did a hurried and slovenly job. It seems to have been less than thorough in the examination of some key witnesses, less than skeptical of some of the official evidence with which it was supplied, less than careful to consider in detail every possible explanation of the assassination other than Oswald's sole guilt."

Perhaps a new investigation would merely reaffirm what the Warren Commission concluded in the first place. In that case, all the responsible criticism would be silenced

State Sends 4-H'ers to National Club Congress

A love for horses that began with a horseback ride at the age of four has won top state 4-H Club honors for one of three outstanding Arkansas young women.

Suzanne Cook, 16, of Melbourne, who admits that her enthusiasm for horses and 4-H creates a "fair fever" each spring as she prepares for county and state fairs, won an expense paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 27 to Dec. 1.

Other trip winners, named by the Cooperative Extension Service, are Donna Hyde, 17, of Paragould, and Martha Benjamin, 16, of Harrison.

Miss Cook, who began riding Quarter Horses with her uncle year, will stay at the Conrad Hilton Hotel where the congress is to be held.

They are Allen Shumate, 16, of Fayetteville, and Eddie Wright, 17, of Rose Bud. Shumate won the state tractor driving contest this year and served as senior tractor leader in his 4-H Club.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shumate, who farm 105 acres, he is responsible for servicing the family tractor.

His trip to the Chicago congress is provided by the American Oil Foundation, sponsor of the 4-H Tractor program.

Wright, a freshman studying engineering at the University of Arkansas, won state honors for his automotive project, sponsored by The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company.

Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wright, has learned to grease cars, fix flats, install plugs and points, replace brake shoes, grind valves, and do many other jobs.

Winners are selected by the Cooperative Extension Service, which supervises 4-H Club work.

Miss Hyde has carried numerous canning and freezing projects involving such foods as poultry, rabbit, breads, vegetables and strawberries. Her success in the projects extends to "all but a few broken or unsealed jars."

Miss Benjamin, the clothing winner, has made nearly 100 garments during her eight years of 4-H work. In addition to becoming an accomplished seamstress, Miss Benjamin said her clothing projects have taught her to "find the best buys on material and pick patterns that best suit my personality."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Benjamin, she will enjoy her trip to Chicago as a guest of Coats & Clark Inc.

The young women will be among 1,600 delegates from the 50 states and Puerto Rico attending the 45th annual congress in the Windy City.

Underseas Robot Fleet—An Exercise in Fantasy

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

AT SEA WITH THE JAMES K. POLK (NEA)—Everybody laughed when the concept of a missile-firing submarine was first proposed. Skeptics said it was impossible. It wasn't.

And now nobody's laughing... especially not the adversaries of the United States.

Indeed, the missile-loaded Polaris submarine is hardly a giggling matter. One and one-half football fields in length, it is perhaps the most terrifying package of science and steel ever devised.

It weighs 16 million pounds but can maneuver in as little as 100 feet of water with the handling and speed of a small automobile. It can circle the world without surfacing. It can swim any ocean without detection. It can manufacture its own air, its own water and its own propulsion power.

But even more awesome is the ship's payload. Sixteen missiles, each 30 feet long and as heavy as a railroad Pullman, are propped in the craft's belly. Any one of them can, in a half-hour's time, streak across continent or ocean to strike and destroy the largest city on either the Russian or Chinese mapface.

So technically developed is the ship, in fact, so accurate and dependable, that the weapon may have only one potential limitation and that is man himself.

As it stands today, of course, a Polaris sub is $100 million worth of inertia without its crew. They push the buttons, they read the dials, they wiggle the rudder.

But what of tomorrow?

"It's hard to predict," says Frank McMullen, captain of the USS Polk. "However, even our present nuclear subs are highly self-sufficient. The hardware itself is capable of staying underwater for years at a time but, of course, the men cannot."

Thus the possibility is obvious, at least to some—unmanned underwater robot fleets capable of indefinite submersion and uninterrupted sentry duty.

The idea may not be as extravagant as it sounds. Already the Polaris project is more machine than man. Millions of dollars' worth of computers now wink gaily in these boats, aiming missiles, directing routes and checking against human mistakes.

One mechanical brain system, for example, has more than five miles of cables requiring 5,000 different connections to set it working; once warmed up, it can spew out calculations at the rate of 2,000 per second and will err only about once in 30 million chances.

Another General Electric computer complex is so infinitely advanced it can give instant target angles from moving subs and is reliable enough that the shell accuracy—navigating over 2,800 miles to ground zero—is measurable in yards.

Clearly the instrumentation is staggering. And while it is true these ship computers cannot now operate without crew, neither can the crew operate without computers.

Still, nobody's turning in his sea bag yet. Skipper McMullen, in fact, sees more problems than probability. "For one thing," he says, "computers need human maintenance."

How about computers repairing computers?

"I hope not."

Why's that?

"I'd be out of a job."

Many Navy types agree with McMullen's skepticism. They indicate that finance alone prohibits a robot sub. Polaris, as example, cost $12 billion to develop, a sum which if stacked in dollar bills would reach 1,000 miles into space.

The idea of ultimate submarine computerization, they gag, would need at least one large machine whose job it would be to manufacture all of the expense money. In short, it's impossible.

MEMBERS OF THE CREW of the James K. Polk snatch a look at the sea from the big sub's conning tower. Ship is capable of almost indefinite submersion; men are not.

Villagers Fear Both Sides

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

UDON THANI, Northeast Thailand—(NEA)—There was stark terror in the villager's face. He did not try to mask his fear. Nor did he want to talk.

"I am afraid," he said. "On the one hand I am afraid of the police and of what they would do to me if I say something they do not like."

"On the other hand I am afraid of the Communists. If I say something that gives them away, they will kill me."

"There are Communists who come to this town to shop. They walk about freely. The villagers know who they are but they do not report them."

"The police know their names and faces because these Communists grew up here. But they can't catch them because no one will report them when they show up in town. The people, like myself, are afraid. We shut our eyes. We see nothing and we know nothing."

This man, a farmer, told me that Communists haven't been in the area long. A Red guerrilla captain, a Thai, began work here only four or five years ago. He was trained in subversion and guerrilla tactics out of the country, then brought back.

"The captain had a meeting recently in a house just out of town," the man continued, his eyes darting warily about, his voice a whisper. "One of his agents invited four people to attend. One was my neighbor who told me about it afterward."

"They had a big feast and then the captain said his people would put an end to the things the police do. He said that when his group came into power the police would be changed."

He said that now there are the rich and the poor. There is great inequality. But if we would work together and come with him, then we would all share in the good times and the bad.

"The captain promised that anyone who came with him now would do well. Three of the men joined up that night and immediately disappeared into the hills."

"I think they're now recruiting more people. No one knows for certain what they are doing. People say they see them occasionally buying food in the markets."

"Nobody talks about what these people do but every once in awhile some young man disappears. Sometimes a body is found."

This villager and many others live each day in fear. Such intimidation tends to tip the balance in northeast Thailand toward the Communists. The growth has been slow but steady, not unlike the spread of Communist influence in Viet Nam. The problem in these outlying areas is not what will happen today or a month from now but what will happen over the next decade.

The rather large Vietnamese community in this area does not help the situation. Many of the Vietnamese, who came to Thailand to escape French rule of Indochina, consider Ho Chi Minh their spiritual and temporal leader.

Because South Viet Nam has produced no revolutionary "hero" and has offered displaced Vietnamese no particular national unity, many of the 40,000 Vietnamese in northeast Thailand emotionally favor Hanoi over Saigon. If they go "home," it is to the north.

Thai police officials, apparently powerless to do anything about it, estimate that the Vietnamese community favors Hanoi 5-to-1 over Saigon. Trained Communist agents work on this loyalty.

IN NORTHEAST THAILAND, poverty is rampant and conditions for growing food (mostly rice) are poor. The area also suffers because of a feeling of isolation from the government in Bangkok.

SEVERAL EMPLOYEES watched parade from Depository steps, one of whom was alleged to resemble Oswald (see box, above). Warren Commission determined that this employee was Billy Lovelady, who identified himself. But people are still making comparisons between Oswald and the man in the picture (see blowup, right).

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have osteoarthritis in a couple of my fingers. Some people advise me to rub the joints. Is that good? How can I prevent the condition from getting worse?

A—There is a strong hereditary factor in the development of the swollen finger joints of osteoarthritis. They are more common in women than in men and often start with the onset of the menopause. Such exertions as typing, piano playing, knitting, trying to open stuck windows or screwtop jars or carrying heavy packages may aggravate them. Excessive heat and cold should be avoided. Many housewives wash dishes in water that is much hotter than it need be or spend too much time rearranging the contents of a deep freeze.

Massage is not recommended. If the joints are acutely red and tender, an injection of hydrocortisone directly into the joint may be helpful. Beyond this and aspirin (if the pain is severe) the only treatment is to avoid the injuries mentioned and keep the hands warm in cold weather.

Q—I have a lot of pain in my legs. My doctor says I have osteoarthritis. How can he tell that it isn't osteosarcoma?

A—The X-ray appearance of osteosarcoma, a form of cancer, is entirely different from that of osteoarthritis.

GOING UP, NOT DOWN IS SM. Sgt. Anthony Martino, demonstrating a new method of creating realistic parachute drops into the water. The drops are part of survival training for aircrewmen of the U.S. Air Force Air Defense Command. At a signal from Martino, a powerful motor boat races away at full speed, lifting the parasail and the sergeant 300 feet above the water. From that height he releases from the boat and drifts down to a landing. The parasail, equipped with 54 aerodynamic holes, acts first as a sail to get the trainee airborne, then as a parachute to simulate a realistic emergency descent.

Virginia once stretched from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean and even included the Bermuda Islands, says The World Almanac. These sea-to-sea boundaries were fixed by three royal charters granted by the King of England in 1606, 1609, and 1611-12. Virginia thus claimed an area of more than one million square miles. This vast territory was reduced by the charters of Maryland in 1632 and Pennsylvania in 1681.

WIN AT BRIDGE

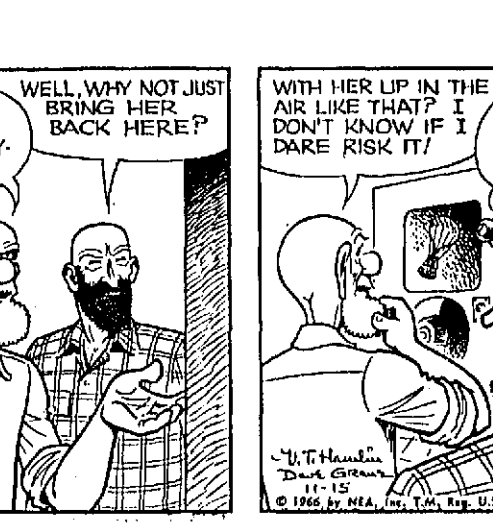

In their own special heaven, declarers will never be set. Finesses will always work and suits will always break. In this mundane sphere it pays to take out insurance just in case there may be bad breaks. North had quite a problem at his second turn to bid. He hated to raise his partner's second suit with only three trumps but he didn't like to rebid his five-card diamond suit; he could not bid no-trump with no spade stopper and he felt that he was too strong to pass. So, he wound up giving that three-trump raise.

South carried on to five hearts after East and West pushed him. Spades were opened and continued. South ruffed the second spade and rather wished that he had gone to a slam. Then he looked around to see what problems he could have at five and noted that only a 5-0 break in clubs or hearts could heart him.

A trump to dummy's ace disclosed the fact that trumps weren't 5-0.

Then South took out the best insurance he could against a 5-0 club break. He led a club from dummy. East made his best play, which was to discard a spade. South won and led a second high club. East ruffed and forced South with another spade but it did him no good. South's insurance had paid off. He ruffed that spade, ruffed a low club with dummy's queen of trumps, drew trumps and ran off the rest of his clubs.

This series of plays would not have worked if East had held all the clubs and West the four trumps but no line of play would have succeeded against that combination of cards.

The court rejected this evidence, since it would mislead more than it would enlighten.

In proper circumstances, almost anything may serve as demonstrative evidence. Once a horseback rider sued a zoo, charging that his horse had been panicked by the "unsightly and unusual appearance" of the zoo's elephant.

At the trial, the defense brought in its demonstrative evidence: the elephant in person. A mere baby, he proceeded to charm everyone in the courtroom with his impeccable manners and friendly demeanor.

With no further ado, the plaintiff dropped the case.

Jury to See Bodies in Mass Slayings

By DAN TEDRICK
MESA, Ariz. (AP) — An all-male coroner's jury convenes today to view the bodies of four women and an infant girl, slaughtered by a laughing 18-year-old gunman as they lay on a beauty shop floor.

While Robert Benjamin Smith, a Mesa High School senior, lounged alone in a four-man jail cell, an inquest into Saturday's slayings of which he is charged was scheduled for Mesa justice court.

Bonita Sue Harris, 18, the only adult survivor of the shooting, remained under treatment in Southside District Hospital. The student beautician suffered head and arm wounds and was expected to be hospitalized several more days.

Smith's parents issued a statement through their attorney expressing grief over "the terrible tragedy wrought upon mankind by their disturbed boy."

'Disturbed' Better Helped Locally

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller, president of the National Association of Mental Health, said Monday that "the emotionally disturbed person can be better helped and more quickly helped if he stays in his own community."

Mrs. Rockefeller, wife of the Arkansas governor-elect, told the association's 18th annual convention that experts today realize that the more normal and natural the situation, the better things are for the mentally ill person.

has arranged psychiatric treatment for young Smith, said Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Smith "extend their heart-felt sympathy to relatives and friends of the victims."

Police said young Smith told them he waited for student hairdressers of the Rose-Mar College of Beauty to arrive for work, then forced the first arrivals to lie in a circle and killed them to "get known... get myself a name."

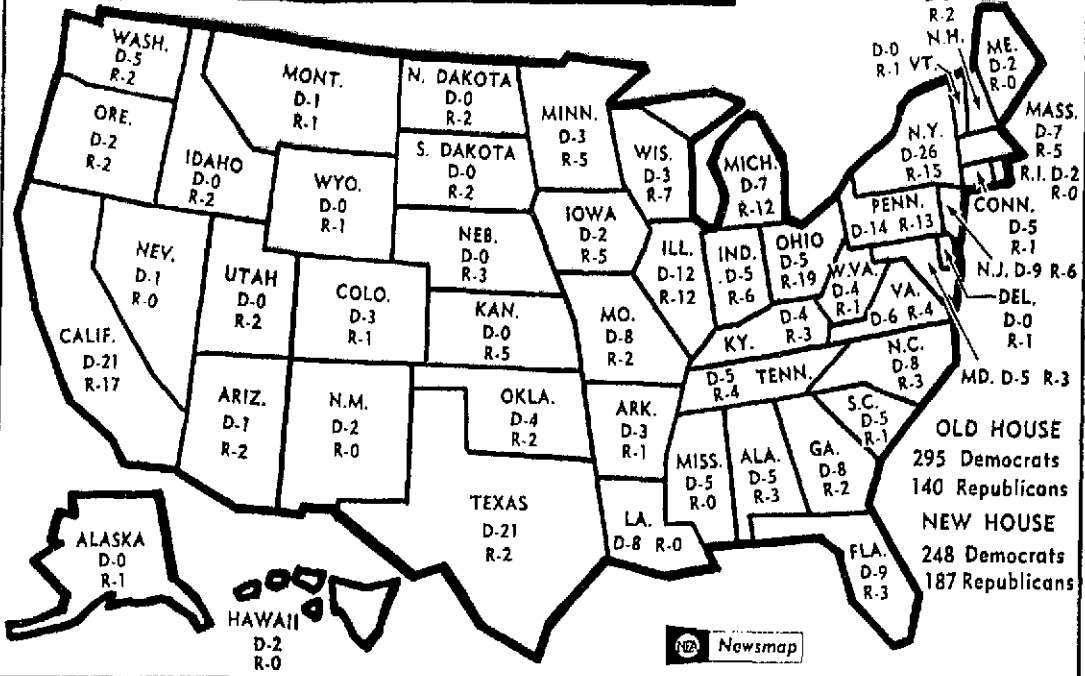

Dead are Mary Margaret Olsen, 18, Glenda Carter, 18, and Carol Farmer, 19, all students; Joyce Sellers, 27, the only customer in the shop, and Mrs. Sellers' 3-year-old daughter, Debra.

Miss Harris and Tamar Lynn, Mrs. Sellers' 3-month-old daughter who was shielded from the bullets by her mother's body, were listed in good condition in the Mesa hospital. The baby was hit in an arm.

Police Chief Gail Brimhall said police were still trying to learn more about the .22 caliber pistol used in the killings but that neither of the parents would talk with officers.

Sleep Helps Tell Secrets of Asthma

By KEN ROBINSON
DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Sleeping children are telling secrets about asthma — a tragic and sometimes deadly disease that grips five million Americans.

Machines record the pulse, breathing, heart beat and brain waves of these youngsters in slumber — and it also records the very movement of their eyes to show when they are dreaming.

Researchers here are looking for patterns that develop before an asthma attack — a constriction of breathing passages that makes the victim feel like he is suffocating. A severe attack can bring death.

Dr. William W. Hahn is conducting the study at the Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital. The hospital offers treatment to youngsters 6 to 15 from the United States and abroad.

Admission is based on the severity of the case and is limited to children who get no relief from conventional treatment.

Dr. Hahn has completed a study based on tests of waking children which shows that asthmatics have different heart beat and breathing rates than healthy youngsters.

"What I'm interested in is what in the nervous system is responsible for triggering this asthma attack," said Dr. Hahn.

He explained that the heart rate and similar body functions are controlled by the autonomic nervous system, composed of two branches which work in opposition to each other.

One speeds up the heart, the other slows it down. Normally, said Dr. Hahn, they achieve a balance or harmony. But he believes in asthmatics the balance is disturbed.

Doctors believe that emotional problems can cause asthma, as well as physical factors such as allergies.

Dr. Hahn is hopeful that the study will show whether emotional stress can trigger an asthma attack. His machines can measure psychological reaction by tracing the brain wave pattern, he said.

He also wants to determine in which of the four stages of sleep asthma attacks occur. Stage one, in which a person dreams, is the stage of lightest sleep. The deepest sleep is in stage four.

Rapid eye movements recorded by the machine show when a child is dreaming, said

Dr. Hahn. Everyone dreams, he said, although some don't remember their dreams when they awaken.

Romney Gives Voice to Ills of Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney unwilling to say yet whether he will try for the Republican presidential nomination in 1968, has put his finger on his party's dilemma in these next two years.

The Republicans are not alone. In that same period, if they hope to win 1968, the Democrats will have to find a way to get out of the stagnation that now besets them and just cost them seats in Congress and governorships.

Romney, fresh from his third-term victory in last Tuesday's elections, Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" panel explained what he thinks the Republicans need to do to win the White House in 1968.

"Well," he said, "I think it is going to take demonstrations on the part of the Republican party that they are the party of promise and they are the party of promise."

The Republicans, under right-wing control, suffered a colossal disaster and their presidential candidate, Sen. Barry Goldwater, was trounced by Lyndon B. Johnson.

But that was the same fate they had met in every presidential election since 1932, except for the two victories of Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956. Yet, his victory was a vote for the man, not for the party, as the voters demonstrated.

In 1952 they gave Eisenhower a Republican — controlled Congress to work with. Two years of that were enough. In 1954 the Democrats regained control. In 1956 the voters, again repudiating the Republicans as a national party, elected Eisenhower for a second time but gave the Democrats a majority in Congress.

Nationally, last Tuesday's elections were a continuation of this voters' attitude although much has been made of the fact that the Republicans did better than expected.

They regained 47 House seats, giving them a total of 187, but the Democrats still run the show with a total of 248. Yet, all 435 House seats were at stake.

In the Senate the Republicans gained three seats, for a total of 33, while the Democrats, with 67, run the show. So much nationally. On the state level the Republicans did well, capturing eight governorships, for a total of 25.

But what the Republican party — as a national party — stands for is hard to say. They're still divided between intense conservatives, moderates, and liberals. One illustration has been provided in a hurry.

Goldwater also appeared Sunday on television, on ABC's "Issues and Answers," and was pretty cool about the idea Romney might head the party in 1968.

But in the states there is a lot of division among Democrats, too, and if any single weakness in the party seemed to be revealed by Democratic setbacks last Tuesday it was this:

President Johnson is a political master in organizing his immediate area, but only one with which he is familiar: Congress, where he spent 23 years, his own immediate staff and department heads.

sentiment for a two-party system to keep him ahead.

Rockefeller believes that he started the race ahead and that Johnson never came close.

"In 1964 Faubus stayed in a position to keep me off balance," he said. "We were in a position this year to throw my opponent off balance any time we wanted to."

One way the Republicans did this was to charge, just five days before the election, that Johnson had not assessed his household goods for taxes as required by law. Johnson has expressed doubts as to whether this hurt him. Rockefeller says he is sure it did.

Rockefeller was asked what he will do about the political situation in Conway County, where he lives and where his friends have been involved in a five-year struggle with Sheriff Marlin Hawkins, leader of the Democratic political faction.

"If the evidence that has come to my attention in reference to the 'Conway County affair' is valid, I feel it would be the duty of the governor, be it his home county or not, to cause an investigation to be made," he said.

Top State 4-H Winners Set for Chicago Congress

An Arkansas boy who financed his own beef project six years ago and has since compiled a profit of more than $3,000 is one of four 4-Hers named to top state honors.

Douglas Hochstetler, 17, of State College, who borrowed money from a bank to buy his first cattle and rent 15 acres of land, will attend the 45th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 27 to Dec. 1.

Also chosen for the expense-paid trip are Gail Smith, 17, of Redfield, and Carolyn Ball, 17, of Sheridan. Trip winners are named by the Cooperative Extension Service, which directs 4-H work.

In addition to numerous champions and grand champions among his herd of Shorthorns and Herefords, Hochstetler said he also learned the basics of good business in financing his projects.

"Instead of permitting his parents to finance his projects, Douglas insisted on borrowing from a local bank and then used the profits to finance future 4-H work," said H. B. Russell, county agent.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Hochstetler, he will be a guest of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company at Chicago.

Miss Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Smith, won the electric award sponsored by Westinghouse Electric Corporation. Her outstanding work includes demonstrations on house wiring and small appliances, teaching electricity to younger members, and conducting a tour through a local electric company. Miss Smith estimates she has given electric demonstrations to more than 15,000 persons.

St. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. St. John, has maintained a herd of Poland Chinas on his father's 149-acre farm during seven years of 4-H work.

His swine projects include insulating and air conditioning farrowing house, building feeder stalls, and installing 1,300 feet of water line to enable the farm to increase its herd.

The swine project is sponsored by the Moorman Mfg. Co. Miss Ball is the achievement winner. The award is made to one state 4-H'er who has demonstrated excellence in all projects.

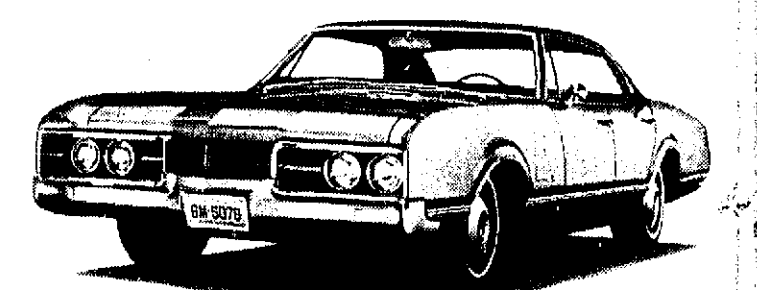

Miss Ball's projects include clothing, entomology, poultry and electric. She is a junior and senior achievement winner and attended the National 4-H Citizenship short course in Washington, D.C. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ball, the trip is sponsored by the Ford Motor Company Fund.

People Are Ahead of Their Leaders in Conservatism

A friend noting this editor's relentless criticism of four-flushing federal finance for nearly three decades asked me before the general election if it didn't seem futile to keep bucking the popular trend.

There comes a time, he inferred, when even the stoutest of men quits fighting and decides to swim with the tide which is as ridiculous as debating the question whether to buck the tide and possibly live or follow it and certainly drown. The general election gave the nation's answer. Politicians who have no money but what they handle in trust for the people pretended to be cock-sure and unafraid of the growing federal debt, but the people were thinking ahead of their leaders. Government had unlimited money from the public debt, but individual citizens suddenly found 1966 was the year private funds began to run out—and they suddenly sensed danger. For the first time they realized what this writer and others have been saying down through the years—that under inflation Government doesn't go broke... but the people do.

The people's decision in the general election was quick and decisive. They defeated almost the entire labor-oriented delegation in Congress, retired scores of liberals and other free-spenders—and wrecked President Johnson's extravagant Great Society program.

Here and there a national leader sensed the switch in the people's thinking and attempted to cool off the build-up in federal debt. There weren't many leaders who got the message—but at least two, Senator Fulbright and Congressman Mills, both of Arkansas.

Long before the election Fulbright began hammering at the insane policy of fighting a war in Viet Nam and at the same time carrying on prodigal spending at home just as if there were no emergency.

Mills began hedging on domestic spending before the election, and now that the election has shown how the people feel he openly defied President Johnson in a speech before the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce Monday night. He said unless the President cuts domestic spending he won't even consider the possibility of raising the income tax. This is bad news for the White House, because Mills is chairman of the House Ways & Means Committee, the most powerful money-control group in the federal government.

I'll venture to second-guess Mr. Mills and say there won't be any increase in the income tax regardless—not after the Democratic disaster of Nov. 8.

The people are demanding that the budget be balanced not by new taxes but by drastic cuts in all home-front spending. And if they don't have their way we'll have a new federal administration from top to bottom in 1968.

Asks Court to End Penal Farm Sentence

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Robert Winters, a Negro bellboy, asked U. S. District Court for a writ of habeas corpus Monday so that he would not have to serve the remainder of his sentence on the Pulaski County Penal Farm.

Winters, convicted on a moral charge involving a white woman, said in his request that the jail sentence given him because he could not pay a fine "arbitrarily imposes imprisonment for no other reason than indigence."

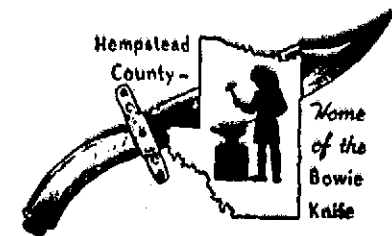

He was arrested and convicted in May, 1965 and sentenced to 30 days in jail and a $254 fine. Winters said he could not pay the fine so the court ordered him to work it off at $1 a day.

NEW YORK (AP)—A motion for dismissal of an anti-trust suit against General Telephone & Electronics has been accepted by U. S. District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan.

U.S. Court Changes Trend, Rules Against Civil Rights Gangs

Russia Would Remove China From Move

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)—The Soviet Union threw its weight today behind a move to read Red China out of the world Communist movement, but Romania objected.

Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev endorsed a Bulgarian proposal for a meeting of the world's Communist parties to establish unity along pro-Soviet lines. But Secretary-General Nicolae Ceausescu of the Romanian Communist party urged that nothing be done that "could deepen disagreement and increase the danger of a split."

Ceausescu also made a harsher attack on U.S. actions in Viet Nam than either Bulgarian Premier Todor Zhivkov or Brezhnev. The Romanian returned to the stiff line that had been absent recently in the Soviet bloc, presumably because the bloc was seeking to arrange peace in Viet Nam.

Johnson to Be Operated on Wednesday

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, at times an impatient patient, enters Bethesda Naval Hospital today to prepare for the dual operation he faces Wednesday morning.

If past performance is any guide, Johnson may be on the move until the last minute. Johnson said he will enter the skyscraper hospital in the Maryland suburbs late today, and undergo throat and abdominal surgery early Wednesday.

It was Johnson's second date with the surgeons in little more than a year. On Oct. 8, 1965, he underwent 2 hours and 15 minutes of surgery for removal of his gall bladder and a kidney stone.

One of his current problems—an incision hernia on the right side of his abdomen—stems from that operation. Surgeons will correct that condition and remove a growth from his throat, near his right vocal cord.

Johnson has termed the operations minor, and said they should take less than an hour. "Within an hour, we will be out from under the influence of the anesthetic," he said Sunday.

While Johnson is on the operating table, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will be acting president.

Johnson said they have a standing agreement spelling out procedures to put Humphrey in charge should the President be incapable of carrying out executive duties.

"We expect that we will be in the hospital for a very few days and then we will be returning to Texas," Johnson said.

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has crossed a threshold in civil rights protest cases.

Whether it has broken sharply with its past holdings is subject to interpretation. Justice Hugo L. Black says the court has not, Justice William O. Douglas says it has.

But however little or much the court may have veered, Monday's 5-4 ruling in a Tallahassee, Fla., case enhances state power to declare certain kinds of government property off limits for even peaceful protest.

Specifically off limits because they were at issue in the Tallahassee case are the driveways and premises of jail houses. Black, in writing the court's decision, did not give other instances of government property which could be declared off limits. But he, and the court majority, undoubtedly mean to encompass more than just county jail houses, for he concluded with this general statement:

"The United States Constitution does not forbid a state to control the use of its own property for its own lawful non-discriminatory purpose."

And he likened government authority in this field to the right of a private person to guard his back yard against trespassing, for he also said:

"The state, no less than a private owner of property, has power to preserve the property under its control for the use to which it is lawfully dedicated."

The decision was not very surprising. In several recent cases various members of the court have demonstrated increasing impatience with civil rights protests. After the decision was announced, Douglas—like Black, a free speech advocate—said from the bench:

"We now have set into the record a great and wonderful police state doctrine." In his written dissent, Douglas expanded on this theme, saying the majority was giving public officials "the awesome power to decide whose ideas may be expressed and who shall be denied a place to air their claims and petition their government."

The First Amendment, Douglas said, gives the 32 Florida A&M students whose trespass convictions were upheld the right to protest segregation outside the Tallahassee jail. At the same time, he conceded, "there may be some public places which are so clearly committed to other purposes that their use for the airing of grievances is anomalous."

Would Like to Be Instructor

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A thief who stole boxing gloves and a punching bag from a car trunk has a free offer to learn how to use them.

"I'd like to teach him the manly art of self-defense," said Carmine Iacobucci, a bantam-weight boxer since 1947 and a veteran of 90 professional bouts. Iacobucci, 39, reported the theft from his car Monday.

No Tax Hike, Says Rockefeller

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Governor-elect Winthrop Rockefeller, who discussed state agent budgets with Gov. Orval Faubus for about four hours Monday, said he believes he can fulfill the state's minimum needs without a tax increase.

Rockefeller, who in January will become the state's first Republican governor since Reconstruction, was scheduled to get further budget information today in a meeting with the state Legislative Council.

Rockefeller said he planned to economize in state government during his two-year term, but he did not say how he planned to do this.

Gathings to Work to Cut Poverty Funds

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP)—Rep. E. C. Gathings, D-Ark., says a coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans "will work tirelessly to cut back on funds for anti-poverty and other Great Society spending programs."

Gathings, speaking before a civic club here Monday night, said the GOP gains in the general election would revive the coalition.

"Whatever is needed and required for the Viet Nam war and the national defense effort will be provided, as it should be," Gathings said. "It's unnecessary spending in wartime that should be and will be curtailed."

He said cuts in spending are the only way to avoid increased taxes.

Unwed Mothers File Housing Suit

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Two Negro unwed mothers have filed suit seeking to desegregate the Little Rock Housing Authority and also to force the authority to admit unwed mothers to the housing project.

The suit, filed in U. S. District Court, charges that the authority refused to accept applications after it was learned the plaintiffs were unwed mothers.

The suit said the segregated housing units was a result of freedom of choice with whites choosing to live in white projects and Negroes in Negro projects.

Tax Lawsuit Withdrawn

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
HARRISON, Ark. (AP)—A lawsuit asking that the vote on a three-mile road tax be nullified in Boone County has been withdrawn by the attorney of the plaintiff, George S. Wood.

Wood filed a taxpayer's suit Friday against the county election commissioners. But William S. Waler, the attorney, said Monday that additional research had convinced him that state law precludes any such attempt to get the tax levied.

Wood had filed the suit because of the failure to place the road tax proposition on the ballots in 13 townships in the county. The tax was defeated in the county in townships where it did appear on the ballot.

No Purge of Workers, Says Rockefeller

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Those who expect Winthrop Rockefeller to take his new broom to the state Capitol and begin sweeping clean with reckless abandon are likely to be disappointed.

"I do not plan any mass purge (of state employees)," the governor-elect told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview. "I intend to make the transition in the most orderly fashion."

He also said he will tread "cautiously but firmly" in his dealings with the 1967 legislature.

Rockefeller said he expects to fill most key positions with Arkansans even to the extent of luring back to the state some who have left for greener pastures.

But these are positions, he said, for which no native Arkansan is qualified and these will be filled with qualified persons, regardless of origin.

Rockefeller assured state employees during his campaign against Jim Johnson that no "competent, capable, conscientious" person would be dismissed when he was elected.

The fact that an employee supported Johnson would not be grounds for dismissal, Rockefeller said, although, he admitted, "We might keep a closer eye on the operation of that employee."

Rockefeller said he plans to set up a steering committee of leaders to advise him on employment. "My judgment, plus the advice of objective people, will help me mold the appointments," he said.

"His administration, he said, will be made up of Republicans, Democrats and independents, because he got help from all three during the campaign.

"Lots of good republicans worked hard and should be rewarded, but not at the expense of standards and my reputation," he said.

Rockefeller said the fact that he ran against Johnson and not Orval Faubus, the man who hired most of the present state employees, makes the transition easier for him.

"If I had run against Faubus, or Frank Holt, who was identified with him, it would have put me in a more difficult position to be rational and non-political," Rockefeller said.

Although he maintains that there will be no purge, Rockefeller said he intends to follow through with a campaign promise to clean out the Highway Commission.

"I'll ask for their (the commissioners') resignations," Rockefeller said. "I get the impression that I will not receive them."

If he does not, he said, he may move to have the commissioners removed for cause.

"I have evidence of inept management that would tempt any reasonable man to offer his resignation," he said.

One of the first things he will do, he said, is demand a public audit of Highway Department accounts. He said that he believes Faubus should start this before he leaves office.

Rockefeller said that he will move cautiously to implement his programs in the Democratic 1967 legislature and that he realizes he may not be able to push everything to passage immediately.

He indicated that he may let the 1967 session take its course, feeling the mood of lawmakers, and then try to get his programs approved in a special session, perhaps in 1968.

"I'm here to represent all the people and it would be wrong for me to come in and throw in a wide-eyed program without depth," he said.

Asked to assess the victory which will make him the first Republican governor in modern Arkansas history, Rockefeller said that Johnson's failure to talk about the issues, Johnson's refusal to meet him face to face and the general desire for a change coupled with growing

Plunge Back Today Ends Blazing Chapter in Gemini Program

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—America's Gemini program reaches a blazing climax today when the record-setting Gemini 12 astronauts plunge back to earth after four days in space.

Following a morning of navigation and engineering experiments, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. plan to fire their braking rockets over the Pacific at 1:46 p.m. (EST) to start the fiery dive back through the earth's atmosphere.

The astronauts are to parachute into the western Atlantic Ocean 707 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy at 2:22 p.m. after circling the globe 59 times and traveling more than 1.6 million miles.

A recovery force of ships, planes and helicopters, headed by the aircraft carrier Wasp, fanned out over the planned landing area. Weather conditions were reported good.

Gemini 12, with three of its 16 maneuvering jets not working at full capacity, limped slightly on the way home. The trouble was not serious and its only effect was to curtail some experiments that required pointing the spacecraft.

Lovell and spacewalk champion Aldrin accomplished most of their assignments.

Drifting for long periods in orbit to conserve fuel, the bearded spacemen sat back and listened to high fidelity music piped over the radio network from mission control in Houston, Tex.

The thruster problem and other minor troubles did not stop Lovell and Aldrin from establishing a number of space firsts.

Among them: —Man's longest space walk, a 2-hour, 9-minute excursion by Aldrin during which he proved that, with proper pacing and equipment, man can work effectively outside an orbiting vehicle.

—Most time working outside a spacecraft, a total of 5 hours 36 minutes by Aldrin, including two "space stands" in which he thrust the upper part of his body through an open hatch. The three sessions outside also was a record.

—Most space flight time. Lovell established this the minute he rocketed into space and added to it as he went along. He had been timed at 13 days, 8 hours, with his Gemini 7 companion, Air Force Col. Frank Borman.

—First pictures of a solar eclipse taken above the atmosphere, by Lovell as Gemini 12 pursued the moon across South America Saturday. Scientists anxiously are awaiting the pictures which might provide some clue to the composition of gases in the sun's corona.

Communists Down Three Helicopters

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Communist gunners shot down three U.S. Army helicopters in Tay Ninh Province today a few hours after B52 bombers pounded the hideout stronghold there of the Viet Cong 9th Division.

A U.S. military spokesman said he had no reports yet of casualties nor any word whether new ground action had erupted in the Communist C Zone where the largest U.S. ground force of the war is pursuing the Viet Cong. Earlier only light contact had been reported.

The helicopter losses in Tay Ninh brought the reported toll of such aircraft in South Viet Nam to at least 223.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 80 Viet Cong killed in a clash between a company of militiamen and a company of Viet Cong 40 miles west of Saigon. Moderate government casualties were reported.

Elsewhere across South Viet Nam, ground action continued in a lull, and bad weather over North Viet Nam reduced American air strikes sharply Monday for the fourth straight day.

Today was the sixth straight day on which the high-flying B52 bombers from Guam pounded the longtime Viet Cong stronghold along the Cambodian border 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

An estimated 30,000 American troops, the largest single force of the war, are massed in the brush country, rubber plantations and jungles where for nearly two weeks they have been battling and pursuing the 9th Viet Cong Division and 22nd regiment of North Vietnamese regulars.

This U.S. force in Operation Attleboro has reported killing 949 of the enemy and seizing huge amounts of arms and ammunition, including 23,000 grenades, 500 claymore mines, 128 weapons and 1,488 tons of rice.

The U.S. command reported that two destroyers, the John R. Craig and the Hammer, shelled Communist shore batteries in North Viet Nam Monday after the ships were fired on while patrolling in the Gulf of Tonkin.

It was the third naval shelling of the north reported. A spokesman said the destroyers, aided by air strikes, silenced the shore batteries 25 miles north of Dong Hoi.

U.S. headquarters also reported that two Marine Corps helicopters were shot down by the Viet Cong 16 miles southwest of Da Nang, killing three crewmen and wounding the fourth in one copter and wounding one of the four crew members in the other.
